WHO HAS BEEN MADE PRIVATE SECRETARY TO HARRISON.

He Is an All Round Journalist and a Good Methodist-A Reporter's Slighting Work Discovered-The Latest Portrait of Gen.

President-elect Harrison has followed in the footsteps of Mr. Cleveland in the ointment of a newspaper man as private secretary. Dan. Lamont has een recognized as one of the powers in Washington ever since he became President Cleveland's private secretary, and whether under any circumstances I now Gen. Harrison has determined to would again consent to serve the peoing editor of The Indianapolis Journal, middle aged man, and of some political All this is a change from the days when the duties of the president's private secretary were mostly clerical. The new plan has its advantages and disadvantages. If the president is to turn out a great historical character, figuring in scenes of sectional strife, like Abraham Lincoln, he may find an advantage in appointing a very young man to live and write his life. John G. Nicolay, then scarcely well into the twenties, was Lincoln's private secre-tary, and John Hay-at the time of his appointment about 22 years old—was his assistant. The youth of these men was fortunate. Twenty-five years must roll round before Lincoln's history could be given to the world, and when the time for its appearance came the two men who in war time occupied such confidential po-sitions were in the prime of life and well Mr. Halford came from England with his parents when a child and with the exception of a zpolis Journal. Then he became reporter. Occupying successive positions on the paper, in ten years he became ed-itor. The only other papers with which he has ever been connected are The Chicago Inter Ocean and The Indianapolis News. He was at one time private secretary to the late Senator Morton.

There is a story told of Halford when he was managing editor of The Chicago Inter Ocean. The Rev. Dr. Harris, rector of St. James' church and after wards bishop of the diocese of Detroit, of the Episcopal church, was then prom-inent among the clergy of Chicago. One day Mr. Halford was introduced to the doctor and told him that he intended publishing a report of his next Sunday evening sermon. A reporter was de-tailed and Halford occupied a front pew. The next morning when Halford took up his paper and looked for the sermon he was astonished at what he saw. The oung man who had been sent to the sermon was not aware of the man aging editor's intentions, and had an en-gagement to spend the evening with his girl, and was not able to listen to the sermon and do Sunday evening courting at the same time. Late that night, he looked over the files of The Inter Ocean and selecting one of Dr. Harris' old sermons republished it verbatim.

When the managing editor came is the next morning there was a breeze. The reporter pleaded that he had got into the wrong church. He was finally par-doned, but Halford never knew just what kind of a church it was the young man

It is said that Mr. Halford's health has become impaired, and he has for some time been desirous of leaving newspaper work; but between the positions of managing editor of a newspaper and the management of the correspondence of a president of the United States one would suppose there would not be much choice, so far as the continued duty is concerned, and that the greater responsibility would lie with the latter office.

Mr. Halford is 45 years old. He is married and the father of a daughter 18 years old. He is very religious and a momber of the Methodist Episcopal church. So long a resident of Indianap-olia, he has doubtless had an acquaintance for years with President Harrison. It is said that after the election in New York, when Fred Grant was for secretary of state, Mr. Halford regarded the way open for the nomination of a western man on the Republican ticket for president. Soon after a few friendly politicians were called together in The Journal office at Indianapolis to take steps for an organized effort to nominate Gen. Harrison. John C. New Land--- New People. North of Prescott 600 miles lies a country almost entirely unprospected. Recently some miners from Utah came through that region and made 5 00 the discovery of ancien tvillages, petri-fied forests, inland takes and a country covered with nutritions grass where many buffalo, elk and deer w seen. A tribe of Indians, unlike any of the wild sons of the forests, were found here who were amazed and bewildered at the sight of a white man. roaming tribes and their dress is com-posed principally of metal plates.

the legislature is not for away.
